Wall clothes-stand

By hanging some of my clothes on a wall, I linger on considering the back that I never see. And what if instead of simply hanging my clothes I would put them onto someone else's back and they leave?

I have analyzed bodies and parts of the female body and I found what I was looking for: shoulders to cover with a gesture of extreme gallantry and a hand coming out from over a shoulder to grab a jacket and quickly go away.

Body's section comes from a cast of a woman's body: the craftsman applies some plaster on the selected part of the body and lets it solidify for a few minutes. The craftsman obtains a first "negative" cast model which he finishes professionally until he gets a perfect clay model. Hence he gets his final plaster cast from which he obtains his basic products which are then subject to furnace treatment, varnished and put together. The work is slow and accurate but finally he achieves the result he was looking for: body beauty on display.
